TheLessonMachine.Com Donates Online Curriculum to All in Need from Katrina

Tucson, Arizona - - September 19, 2005 - - Educational systems and support programs suffering adjustment pains after Hurricane Katrina now have a relief valve. TheLessonMachine.Com.

“Any school system, teacher, family literacy support program or shelter affected by Katrina qualifies for the donation,” says project founder Myscha Theriault. “All the materials are available instantly. Those in need should simply fill out the contact form at <http://www.thelessonmachine.com> informing us of their location, need, email address and other contact information. We’ll assign access codes upon receipt of the information, and they’ll be all set.” Book titles on the site with support materials may be obtained from local libraries, further reducing cost concerns.

The web site also provides rotating free curriculum samples on a monthly basis, along with a no-cost newsletter.
