New Teacher Website Provides Curriculum for Homeschoolers Around the World / TheLessonMachine.Com Provides Affordable Curriculum Alternative

Tucson, Arizona – June 1, 2004 -- Homeschooling is more popular than ever. For any number of reasons, more and more families are making the commitment to educate their children within the home. TheLessonMachine.Com wants to make this job as easy as possible for parents. “The task can be very daunting,” reports the site’s founder, Myscha Theriault. “We relieve that burden by providing the majority of each week’s lessons for them.”

Based on an ultra affordable subscription model, TheLessonMachine.Com provides instructional materials on a multitude of topics and literature titles, an index of which is available on the site. “Our geography materials are especially cost effective,” says Theriault. “As are our literature units. We believe providing a sound academic framework shouldn’t have to cost a fortune.”

Free samples and subscription information can be found by visiting <http://www.thelessonmachine.com> . Log on today for more information regarding this innovative new program.
